- Following receipt of their letter of offer in June 18, SEMRA became aware through AED supplier contacts that the AED proposed to purchase i.e. Philips Headstart FRX) is coming to the end of this product life and would no longer represent a wide investment
- SEMRA have conducted further research of the AED market to identify a unit which is suitable for mountain rescue application and is early in its product life cycle. From this the Schiller FRED Easyport AED was identified
- The new unit is in its early product lifecycle, is smaller and lighter for use in mountain rescue and has more advanced analytical capability to enable better casualty care
- SEMRA have re run the supplier selection process based on this new AED unit
- Based on 3 quotes received, Fleming Medical has been selected as the preferred supplier. The new unit is slightly cheaper than the original model so no increase of grant aid sought
